McMAHON MURDER TRIAL CAME TO ABRUPT END

Judge Charged the Jury This Morning and at 3:30 This Afternoon No Verdict Had Been Rendered.

Testimony in the McMahon murder trial closed yesterday. McMahon was the last witness called. He said, "I shot to save my life, and the shot is the one that took the life of John Sisto. There were Italians between me and the ferry, there were Italians between me and the railroad station, there were Italians on the bluff at one side of me and all were stoning me, and the river on the other side was 20 feet deep. I was struck in the side, in the breast and on the shoulder four or five times in all. I did not want to retreat into the pump house, but it was the only way open. The Italians were pressing close upon me and were all throwing at me. The one that was killed had a stone in his hand and ready to hit me. I had already been hit several times."

Such in brief is McMahon's story of the riverview shooting which placed him on trial for murder.

On the afternoon of the trouble he said he was walking down the road toward the railroad station to take the train for Monessen. Gus Marks was with him and in the road they found a wheelbarrow. An Italian was standing nearby, but he did not have the wheelbarrow in his hands. Marks seized the handles and playfully tried to run over McMahon's foot, whereupon the latter kicked the barrow over on its side. At that instant the Italian protested and threatened to call his boss. Words followed, more Italians arrived and one of them struck McMahon. He stepped back and stones began to fly whereupon he drew his revolver and fired two shots into the ground. The Italians scattered and rallied when a short distance away and bombarded him with stones, advancing at him in a semi-circle. He was hit several times and one of them pushed his gold watch which he had in his vest pocket. The timepiece was offered in evidence. The crystal was broken and the face damaged.

As they pulled across the river he heard calls for him to return to the Fayette county shore, but he did not heed it until a skiff pulled out in pursuit and he saw an officer in it. The officer was Constable George Brown and his son. McMahon did not recognize them until they were close and in the meantime he had pulled his revolver. Brown called upon him to throw up his hands and as he did this own revolver fell overboard into the river. It was never recovered. McMahon testified that he requested Brown not to take him back to the Fayette side lest they be attacked and all killed. However, Brown returned with him and there was no trouble.

The tetimony closed yesterday and each of the attorneys made a lengthy plea and this morning the judge made his charge to the jury. It was nearly noon before they retired and at 4 o'clock this afternoon had not yet returned a verdict.

HE ACCUSES HIS WIFE

Mr. Dale Takes Exception to Article in Yesterday's Independent and Makes Reply

Mr. Editor: I take exceptions to the article in yesterday's Daily Independent regarding the separation of myself and wife. The altercation which took place was over a boarder with whom Mrs. Dale became entirely too familiar. I remonstrated which any other man of ordinary sense would do under the circumstances I deny that I have ever been cross or obstinate to my wife or family, but she has been persuaded by a dastardly villain to leave her home and left it of her own volition and I expect to put up a tremenduous fight to gain the custody of my children. She would not even allow me to have peaceful possession of the oldest boy according to our mutual agreement, until the court had granted or refused a divorce and ruled who should be the custodian of the children.

Wurtz-Carter.

The marriage of Miss Laura Carter of Brownsville to Mr. G. R. Wurtz of this city, took place at Uniontown Monday. The ceremony was solemnized in the English Lutheran church of that place. The bride was one of Brownsville's most popular young ladies, while the groom who is a very agreeable gentleman has made a host of friends since coming to Monessen a short time ago. The couple will go to housekeeping in Monessen in the near future.

WILL HAVE BETTER LIGHTS

The electric light service of Monessen has been extremely poor for some time past on account of the lines being to small to carry sufficient voltage to supply the town, especially has this been the case on Saturday nights when an increased demand is made. The Electric Light Company has been busy for several months putting in larger lines from New Haven and it will require about two weeks to complete the work and make the connections. But it will not be necessary for the town to wait until the work is done before a better service can be obtained, as arrangements have been made with the Pittsburg Steel Company whereby the extra voltage of the Steel plant will be turned into the city lines on Saturday nights until such times as the Electric Light Company can connect up its lines.

After that Monessen can rest assured that it will be one of the best lighted towns in the country. The company has a 10,000 horse power plant at New Haven and the voltage from such a plant in addition to what we already have will make an almost perfect service.

A Roast Pig Supper.

Robt. Hawkins, who won the roast pig at the second annual outing of Maced No. 1, U. R. K. of P. held at Beachwood park Monday, gave a roast pig supper in honor of a number of friends from Wheeling. The event was a very enjoyable one, speeches being made by several of the guests. Among those present were: Messrs. Charles Day, Wm. Taylor and Frank Smith of Wheeling, John Robbins, A. Kenny, Arch Rollins, Andy Baldin, Wm. Griffith and John Baldin of Belle Vernon and J. A. Johnson of this city.

Brotherhood to Celebrate.

The Swedish Brotherhood of Monessen will give a patriotic celebration tomorrow night in Socialistic hall and will dedicate the flag and standard. H. T. CHARLEROI CAPITALISTS TO BUILD IMMENSE ICE PLANT.

Site Selected at Lock 4 Near Bridge Approach to Monessen. Plant Will Have a Capacity of Over Forty Tons Daily.

A combination of capitol was formed in Charleroi this afternoon for the purpose of erecting an immense ice plant at Lock No. 4, just across the river from Monessen, with a capacity of over forty tons daily. The men at the head of the enterprise are A. S. Walton, John O. Watson and Tom P. Sloan, all of whom are well known and successful business men of Charleroi.

Every arrangement has been made for the erection of the plant and it is to be one of the best of its size in the valley. The plans and specifications are already prepared and within the next few days the contract will be let.

Not only will this enterprise be a benefit to Charleroi and vicinity, but Monessen will be greatly benefitted and this is one of the reasons the present site was selected, so it will be as near the bridge approach as possible.

Monessen has several times been threatened with an ice famine this summer and other valley towns have suffered from the same experience. These gentlemen have decided upon an investment that will no doubt prove to be a very profitable one and at the same time be a great benefit to the surrounding community.

AN EXCELLENT STOCK COMPANY

We take pleasure in recommending to the people of Monessen and vicinity the merit of the Nick Russell Comedy Company which is now in our city in a three nights stand at the local opera house.

Last night the "Peaceful Valley" was the attraction but only a fair sized audience greeted the artists. The show was excellent in tone and character and the audience was well pleased with the work of each member of the company and the attraction was a credit to the management. Every climax was reached with dignity and modesty which is characteristic of only the better class of entertainments. The show was modest and dignified and all who had the good fortune to be present were well paid for their time and trouble.

Tonight the attraction will be "Wife in Name Only" and a crowded house should greet Mr. Russell and his company of excellent artists.

SCOTTDALE MAN MISSING.

Left Home Saying he Would be Back to Dinner but Never Showed up.

Charles Campbell, of Scottdale, arose from his chair, where he had been sitting reading and drew on his coat at his home in Fifth avenue, Browntown.

"Don't go away. "Dinner will be ready soon," said his wife. "I will be gone only 20 minutes," he answered and went out.

That was three weeks ago. Since that time nothing has been heard from him. The most diligent inquiry has failed to discover anyone who saw him after he left the house. The missing man is a son of Peter Campbell, one of the pioneer citizens of Scottdale, and has been for some time an employe of the Union Supply Company in their meat market department. Foul play is feared.

STILL MOURNS

An old and deep wound in the Amerioan heart is reopened by the statement, incidental to the recent unveiling of of the McKinley monument that "Mrs. McKinley, widow of the late president, was unable to attend the dedication exercises." Great and lasting as has been the sorrow of the people over the assassination of a beloved leader, its shadow never has obscured the pathetic picture of lonliness of the invalid wife, whose devotion to her noble husband was as inspiring as the great love with which he made ideal the years of their life together. The horror of the assassin's crime stands out all the more at the thought of a sacred unity of souls ruthlessly marred, and the sympathy of all humanity is again stirred at the thought of the patient sufferer enduring the grief such as she shares with the world and yet she must endure alone.

THE Editor of the West Newton Times-Sun has written a scathing editorial condemning the street loafers and prays that the town authorities will proceed at once to enact a law and enforce it to break up the habit. Brother Waters is right and his argument is elevating in tone and many other towns need just such legislation as our worthy brother suggests for West Newton.

THE business man who makes a success and is up to the standard of the times is the one who advertises constantly. This cannot be denied as there is proof of it everywhere. The Daily Independent is the best medium through which the local merchant can keep his name before the buying public of this community. It is issued every evening as regular as clock work and contains all the home news The enterprising and up to date business man will take advantage of its columns.

THE fact that the local mills cannot get sufficient cars to ship their products is an exemplification of Monessen's prosperity. Several of the mills have been short of cars the past week.

ON WILLIE'S ACCOUNT

By BEATRICE STURGES

Copyright, 1906, by C. H. Sutcliffe

Willie sat on the steps in a distinctly unhappy mood. It was the first of July, bright and beautiful. The garden was ablaze with flowers and he could pick as many as he wanted. His ball and books and little fire engine lay on the porch beside him, and his collie pup was begging him to come and play, but Willie had no heart for any of these attractions.

He was grieved. What was the use, he reflected, of being the only child if your father and mother go away for two weeks and leave you at home? What was the use of having a young aunt stay at your house if she shut herself up in her room and wouldn't come downstairs? And what was the use of being alive at all when the circus was coming to town in three days and nobody had invited you to go? Life was full of terrible problems. He was just wondering if he hadn't better cry about it when he saw a friend coming down the street and hastily changed his mind.

This friend was nothing less a person than Max Harwood, chief of the volunteer fire department of Norwood, commodore of the local yachting club and a hero in Willie's eyes. By some mysterious coincidence Commodore Max appeared on the scene with great promptness and frequency whenever Willie's aunt, Miss Marjory Dean, came for a visit, and as these visits had been rather numerous during the year just passed Willie knew him well enough to rummage through his pockets and to boast about their intimacy whenever any of the other boys needed a little wind taken out of their sails.

To Willie's surprise Max was passing with merely a wave of the hand so the little boy jumped up and ran after him.

"Hello, Napoleon!" cheerily called his hero. It was his fancy to call Willie by the names of the world's great generals, one after another.

"Good morning, commodore; aren't you coming in to see us?"

"Guess not, Hannibal; it's pretty early for company."

"You have been earlier than this," said the child reproachfully.

"Well—er—I'm kind of busy this morning"—

Willie was turning away to hide the hurt look in his eyes. Nobody wanted to bother him. Max saw this and hastily added:

"But get your cap and come along. I'm going down to fix up the boat. You can help me."

The delighted child raced back to the house for his cap and then was off hand in hand with the commodore, happy as a lark.

They worked all the morning on the boat and then the commodore took Willie up the river for a sail.

"Are you going to the circus, Agamemnon?" inquired Max, by way of conversation.

With a recurrent touch of gloom Willie was forced to admit that he didn't think he was.

"Well, I'd like to take somebody of just about your size," went on his host, "and I think that somebody is you. What do you say, my hearty?"

"Fine! Fine!" shouted Willie.

"Well, heave ho, there, and we'll splice the main brace. Keep out of the lee scuppers while I hoist the mainsail. Ha! Ulysses, what do you think of that?" And Max, who loved to mix up nautical terms for Willie's entertainment, made the cleanest kind of a landing at his own pier.

"Did you ever shiver your timbers, commodore?" asked Willie.

"Lots of times, Wellington, and still live to tell the tale. Don't forget about the Fourth—side shows, fat lady, peanuts, elephants, pink lemonade—we'll see it all."

"Indeed I won't!" cried the child, wild with delight as he raced into the house to tell his aunt.

She was watching for him anxiously. "Oh, Willie boy, where have you been all the morning?" she exclaimed, kissing him.

He told her breathlessly, and she listened to his admiration of the commodore with rising color.

"Isn't he perfectly splendid, Aunt Marjorie? They say there are ten elephants and the lions growl something awful! But I won't be afraid with the commodore. Only I wish you were coming too. Wouldn't you like it? I'm sure he'd take you, too, if you asked him."

"No, honey, I—I don't think so. I don't expect to see the commodore again; we—we aren't friends any more."

"Oh, auntie!" exclaimed Willie, in genuine dismay. "And he's so good too."

Willie thought for a minute that his Aunt Marjorie was going to cry, and then he was surprised to hear her say in a manner singularly unlike her usual gentleness. "Maybe some people think he is good, but I know his true character, and I do not think you ought to go around alone with him." This speech was rendered with all the dignity that a woman of the world, aged nineteen, could muster.

"You went with him alone to lots of places," complained Willie. "You went last night."

"Yes, and that's just the reason I'm not going again. If a man takes a girl to a dance and forgets her he will certainly forget a little boy when he takes him to the circus, and then what would happen to you?"

Really this was awful. Willie had never seen his dear little aunt in such a state, but she was very sweet to him and took him out driving that afternoon, stopping in the village to buy him candy and lots of fireworks for the Fourth. He didn't know what to think about his beloved commodore, but saw him the next day and promptly repeated the whole conversation. It seemed to him the simplest way out of the difficulty.

"Did you forget, commodore?" he insisted.

"Great Scott, Willie, maybe I did; she says so; but she wasn't lonesome," he said grimly. "Girls are queer creatures, Wellington; you'll find that out some day. But don't say another word about the circus. I'll fix it some way. You're going to see it as sure as your name is Vincingetorix."

So Willie kept his counsel and was petted much by his auntie for the next two days. On the morning of the Fourth he was firing off his crackers from the open window in his little nightclothes at 4 o'clock, and Marjorie said never a word of complaint. She had made up her mind to take him to the circus herself and to get away early to avoid any possible conflict with her former great friend, the commodore now a stranger forever.

Before lunch was over, however, the commodore's touring car stopped at the door and the commodore was standing on the porch, cap in hand, announcing that he had come.

"Yes, I see," returned Marjorie coolly, but deliberately avoiding his gaze. Max had such a way of looking at one. "But what for?"

"Why, to take my friend Julius Caesar to the circus."

Willie looked anxiously from one to the other in an ecstasy of hope and suspense.

"I told Willie"—

"Yes, I know," he interrupted, "but if you come, too, it will be all right."

"Oh, yes, auntie!" cried Willie, jumping with joyful anticipation.

Marjorie tried hard to look cold and dignified.

"Would you spoil that child's day?" asked the commodore, coming closer. "Marjorie, please!" His eyes urged her as well as his voice.

She looked at him. "All right, I'll go. But it's just on Willie's account."

"Any reason will do," responded Max as he helped her into the car. "But maybe you can find a better one before we get home. I'm going to ride back here with you and William." He lifted the delighted child, gave him a hug, and put him in the front seat with the chauffeur. "William the Conqueror is going to have the time of his life."

The Turquoise Land.

Sinai was known as the "turquoise land" in very ancient times, and Dr. Flinders Petrie believes that it was the first mining center in the world. In his book on the subject Dr. Petrie tells of the various expeditions sent to Sinai by the Egyptian government. At the head of the party was the "commander," or "bearer of the seal of the god," the pharaoh. The others' staff consisted of "masters of the house of metals," or assayers, scribes and secretaries, to make inventories of the output of the mines. Even more modern were the "devisers of methods," or prospectors. The working staff consisted of miners and their assistants. The commissariat had cooks, bread bakers, water carriers and even a doctor attached. The mines could only be worked for a certain period, from January to May, which is exactly the best period for archaeological work in Sinai today. The miners lived in camps, and the so called forts and camps were really miners' villages.

England and the Sea.

Yorkshire alone has a record of no fewer than twelve drowned towns and villages. There was Ravenspur, for instance, which was constituted a free borough by Edward I. at a cost of £300 and became a seaport of almost national importance. There it was that Edward Bahol embarked with a force of 2,500 strong in order to win the crown of Scotland. The town, bigger and more important than Hull, had five churches, a capacious harbor and a number of buildings befitting its rank and importance. Where are they now?—London Pall Mall Gazette.

HAPPY WOMEN.

Wouldn't any woman be happy,
After years of backache suffering,
Days of misery, nights of unrest,
The distress of urinary troubles,
To find relief and cure?
No reason why any reader
Should suffer in the face of evidence like this:

Mrs. Albert A. Jackson, of East Front St., Traverse City, Mich., says: "For twenty years I was doctoring for kidney and liver trouble but without benefit. Just before I began using Doan's Kidney Pills I was almost paralyzed. I could hardly stand on my feet because of the numbness and lack of circulation. Had a knife been thrust into my kidneys the pain could not have been more intense. My sleep was disturbed by visions of distorted figures. The kidney secretions were annoyingly irregular and I was tortured with thirst and always bloated. I used seven boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills. The bloating subsided until I weighed 100 pounds less, could sleep like a child and was relieved of the pain and the irregularity of the kidney action. My circulation is good and I feel better in every way."

A FREE TRIAL of this great kidney medicine which cured Mrs. Jackson will be mailed on application to any part of the United States. Address Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. For sale by all druggists, price, 50 cents per box.

DIRECTORS MEET TOMORROW.

Rostraver Township School Board to Take Building off Contractor's Hands and Fill Vacancies.

The school board of Rostraver township will hold a meeting at Webster tomorrow afternoon when the building which has been remodled will be taken off the hands of the contractors. School will not open Monday as was intended as Prof. Williams has resigned the principalship making in all three vacancies. Miss Dorcas Stoneman who was to teach No. 5 was recently transferred to one of the other township schools, which fact is liable to cause friction among the directors as the idea of taking one of the Webster teachers to fill a vacancy elsewhere does not meet with the approval of the local director.

This morning only two applications for the vacancies had been filed with the local director although several more are likely to be received today. It is the desire of the directors to have the schools open as soon as possible and if po sible the three teachers will be elected tomorrow.

Sarah Bernhardt Was Fooled.

Sarah Bernhardt once fell victim to a sudden attack of homesickness while she was traveling in eastern Europe She announced that she was going back to Paris immediately Bucharest was the next city on the route and Bernhardt's impresario at once sent the following telegram to his advance agent, who was then in the Roumanian capital. "Wire me immediately as follows -Nobility and leaders society preparing magnificent reception. Minister of fine arts will be represented station. Torch light procession, massed bands. Wire exact hour arrival'" This telegram was duly sent and the impresario showed it to the actress, who forgot her homesickness in view of the magnificent reception awaiting her. When they arrived there were sixty solemn gentlemen in evening dress, with many decorations, on the platform, there were torches, flags and flowers, massed bands played the "Marseillaise" and the triumphal procession started for the hotel. "Are you not coming with us?" said the impresario to his advance agent, who showed signs of remaining at the station instead of going to the hotel. "No," he said. "I must look after the nobility and leaders of society. I am afraid they will bolt with their dress clothes." But the actress, so the story goes, never guessed that the sixty great men at the station were supers hired by the advance agent at 36 cents a head.

Life Saving at Fires.

If lives are in danger at a fire it is a universal rule that life saving takes precedence over fire fighting. If fire escapes are lacking or seriously obstructed all hands devote their entire energies to the work of rescuing by raising ladders, by forcing a passage through smoke filled hallways or by other emergency means. Life nets are spread and held ready for those who have not the nerve to wait for their rescuers. Life saving consumes valuable time which could be applied to advantage in fighting the flames, and the probable necessity for expending this time, governed as it is by many considerations, plays an important part in studies of underwriters Occasionally pompier ladders or window scaling ladders are used in emergencies for making rescues. These furnish thrilling incidents for the newspapers, but are less efficient, slower and a great deal more dangerous both to the firemen and the rescued than the plain or extension ladders.
